

Union Heads May Pass Buck to Men On Rail Strike

General Verdict Seems to Be "It's Up to The Men"

WALK-OUT LESS LIKELY

Little Strike Talk is Heard as Union Chieftains Convene

By International News Service.
CHICAGO, July 1.—As a majority of the 1,500,000 railway workers throughout the country reported for work today at reduced wages, their representatives, 1,000 strong, were assembled in Chicago for conferences regarding the 12 per cent. wage slash. They are relied upon to keep the transportation wheels turning.

The union leaders of the sixteen organizations dominating the railroad labor board gathered here are as about as talkative as clams. In no quarter is loud talk heard of "strike." The general verdict of the delegates appears to be: "It's up to the men."

Railway officials do not appear to be worried by prospects of a strike. They pointed out today that the union leaders are cognizant of the industrial depression throughout the country and that they would hesitate long before recommending any action that would swell the ranks of the jobless.

In the unexpected event that the railway labor heads should advise their men to walk out, subject to a referendum vote, there would be no immediate action, since Weeks would be required to compile the vote in many of the unions which as yet have not registered their opinion regarding the United States Railway Labor Board's wage cut decision.

The Executive Board of the shop crafts union, which already has voted down the wage slash, has decided not to order a walk out at present but will ask the railway board to reconsider its action and to hear new evidence. The leaders of this union, the largest of all the railway workers organizations, have indicated that a five per cent wage cut might be acceptable.

Conferences among the union leaders were on in earnest.

Taxi Cab Caught On Swinging Bridge

Goodall Hartshorn, taxi cab proprietor, had a narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident this morning.

Mr. Hartshorn was driving his machine over the canal bridge at Jefferson avenue. Just as his car had gotten onto the bridge a boat struck the bridge and it swung around. With presence of mind and quick action Mr. Hartshorn shut off his power and jammed on the brakes. The car stopped before reaching the edge of the swinging structure. Mr. Hartshorn sat in the machine and swung around with the bridge until the boat had passed.

General Pershing Assumes Duties of Chief of Staff

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—General John J. Pershing today assumed his new duties as head of all the military forces of the United States.

As Chief of Staff, succeeding Major-General Peyton C. March, whose approaching retirement has been announced, General Pershing is in command of the General Staff, the War Department peace-time organization, and as head of the general headquarters organization, authorized by Secretary of War Weeks, he will have charge of the work of recruiting the reserve strength of the Army and building up the war machine which he will command if the United States again get into war.

General Pershing is thus put in a position of more authority than has ever before been bestowed upon an Army officer in time of peace. While nominally chief of staff, he will actually be the executive officer of the Secretary of War.

Stillman To Be In Friends' Hands Today

By International News Service.
POUGKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 1.—James A. Stillman will be in the hands of his friends when he goes on the stand again today in his divorce suit against his wife, John E. Mack, guardian and litem of baby Guy whom Stillman seeks to disown, completed his cross examination of the banker late yesterday. Today the bankers legal staff will commence a brief re-direct examination of their client in an effort it is believed to counteract the impression made by his refusal to answer questions on the ground that they would "incriminate and degrade" him.

Time and time again, when the ex-President of the National City Bank declined to answer, Mr. Mack would query:

"Do you really believe sir, that an answer to that question would tend to incriminate and convict you?"

Every time the financier would reply: "I do."

Mrs. Stillman's counsel were jubilant today. They believe the admissions the banker did make regarding the gifts he made his wife after baby Guy's birth greatly helped their cause.

Train Safe Looted; Messenger is Shot

Masked Bandits Make Escape With Unnegotiable Railroad Drafts

TRAIN CREW UNAWARE

By International News Service.
COVINGTON, Ind., July 1.—Two masked bandits today held up a Peoria and Eastern (C. C. C. and St. Louis) passenger train, shot the express messenger, dumped a safe out of the express car and escaped. The messenger was so seriously wounded he was unable to give a clear account of the robbery which occurred half mile east of here. The amount of the loot has not been ascertained.

The bandits boarded the train at Covington, looted the safe and dropped off at Veversburg, eight miles east of here. They disappeared in the darkness before the train crew, warned by a mail clerk who heard the shots knew of their presence. The wounded messenger is Frank J. Beckman, of Indianapolis. He was brought to a hospital here, and was later removed to Indianapolis. He suffered two bullet wounds in the hip.

INDIANAPOLIS Ind., July 1.—Robbers who held up an early morning Peoria and Eastern passenger train near Covington, Ind., today obtained no cash but made away with a large amount of railroad remittances, or drafts, according to word received at the offices of the American Railway Express Company here. These drafts were declared not to be negotiable. Express company officials were checking up on the loss.

Two suspects were taken from freight trains at Veversburg and two at Crawfordsville, later in the morning. Their description tallies generally with that given by express messenger.

Cloudburst Alone Can Stop Fight; Reformers Fail

Light Rain Will Not Halt It, As Ring Has Covering

91,000 TO SEE THE FIGHT

Principals Spend Last Day in Light Training And Seclusion

Fight Special Stops Here

Chief Burgess Clifford L. Anderson has arranged with the Pennsylvania Railroad to have the "Fight Special" train stop at Bristol tomorrow morning to take aboard the local people who are going to witness the bout. The special will stop at Bristol at 10:07 A. M. Daylight Saving Time.

The fifteen local fans will be on hand to board the train and there will also be a number of their friends present to see them off, and wish that they too were among the lucky holders of pasteboards giving admission to the Jersey City arena.

NEW YORK, July 1.—When Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier crawl through the ropes to face each other tomorrow afternoon in Jersey City in the "battle of the century," the biggest and most cosmopolitan crowd that ever witnessed a fistic struggle will be present.

The gigantic amphitheatre which Tex Rickard has erected is declared to have a seating capacity of 91,613. It was fairly certain today that this vast arena will be filled to overflowing.

The sale of tickets for seats at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight at one o'clock today had reached the total of $1,250,000, according to an announcement of Promoter Tex Rickard.

Mr. Rickard says that with the tickets he will sell tonight and tomorrow up until noon the total will reach $1,500,000.

It will take a veritable cloudburst to stop the fight Promoter Rickard has made plans to go through with the bout in the event that only a light rain falls. He will have a covering over the ring to protect the fighters and keep the ring dry. The covering will be so fixed that it will not obscure the view of spectators in the "bleachers." In the event that rain falls all day, and too hard to permit holding the bout, it will be postponed until the same hour Monday afternoon.

The big fight is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock eastern daylight saving time. (2 P. M. Eastern Standard Time).

Every train that arrived in New York today brought scores more who want to be present in Boyles Thirty Acres tomorrow. Many of them have their tickets. Many more have not, but hope to get the coveted pasteboards when the cheaper seats are placed on sale early tomorrow.

Every hotel within a radius of fifty miles of greater New York reports all rooms engaged for tonight. Judging from the steady stream of arrivals today there will be a great many who will have difficulty in finding places to sleep tonight.

The principals in tomorrow's struggle were in seclusion today. The champion was preparing to make his get-away from Atlantic City. He did only the lightest kind of work today, simply to loosen up his muscles. He

Georges May Get Legion If He Defeats Dempsey

By International News Service.
PARIS, July 1.—It was reported here today that Georges Carpentier will receive the insignia of the Legion of Honor if he whips Jack Dempsey in their fight at Jersey City tomorrow.

Response Gratifying But Red Cross Repeats Appeal

Contributions to support the community nursing work of the Red Cross are still being received, and today the committee acknowledges the receipt of $10 from Frederick J. Leibfried.

The committee also announces that money is still needed, in order that the work may be continued.

The value of such work in this community has been demonstrated beyond a doubt. To discontinue it at the present time would work a hardship on many of the poor of Bristol, and those who are being cared for by Miss Jones, the visiting nurse.

Contributions of the work may be forwarded to Mrs. J. Fred Wagner, treasurer, Radcliffe and Franklin streets.

Sure Legion Show Went Over The Top

Complete Receipts Not Calculated, But Veterans Are Confident

OVER 2,000 ATTENDED

The benefit last night in the Forrest theatre held under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Robert W. Bracken Post, N. 382 American Legion is expected to net the Legion a neat sum. A complete report will not be available until a meeting of the auxiliary this evening, when all unsold tickets and money for those which have been sold are to be turned into the officers of the Auxiliary.

It is estimated that there were 2,000 people attending the two performances held last night. The first show was crowded to the doors, and Manager Wilson of the Forrest theatre is quoted as having said that it was the biggest crowd to attend a benefit given in his theatre for many weeks.

The program met with the approval of the large audience and each number was liberally applauded. The picture showing Georges Carpentier, in "The Wonder Man," was well received. Little Miss McNee, of Harriman, gave several of her dances which delighted the audience. The Granzow Sisters also danced several numbers and showed considerable ability and the vocal selections by Mr. Andrew Mac Arthur of Edgely, were other pleasing features.

Library To Receive Books Bequeathed By Dr. Groom

The Bristol Free Library, under the will of the late Dr. Evan J. Groom, Bristol's well known and Bucks County's oldest physician is to receive six large volumes of "Medical History of the Civil War."

This is the first bequest made to the library since it became a public institution. Those having charge of the library and its supporters appreciate the fact that it was remembered in the will of Dr. Groom. The books will be placed on the shelves and be available to those interested.

Bethlehem Steel Cuts Wages 15 Per Cent. Today

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 1.—The Bethlehem Steel Company today announced a wage reduction at its Steel-plant of 15 per cent. to be effective July 16 and all salaried employees will be cut 10 per cent. effective August 1.

The labor rate by the reduction is reduced from 32 to 27 cents, just half a cent higher than the rate paid on October 1, 1917. Along with the wage cut the company announced a reduction in the rents of all houses owned by it from 8 to 10 per cent. The reduction in rents is said to wipe out all increases in rents made by the company during the past fifteen years. The plant is now operating at about 30 per cent of capacity.

Plan Consolidation Of Disabled "Vets" Ass'n

By International News Service.
WASHINGTON, July 1.—The full strength of every disabled ex-service man in the country is to be enlisted in the fight for fair treatment and justice, under a plan put forward by the National League of Disabled Soldiers, today.

A special committee has been appointed to meet representatives of every organization of disabled ex-service men, with a view to "one big organization over the United States."

Realizing the need for cooperation between the thousands of disabled veterans, if their force is to be most effective, the League has agreed to cast aside internal differences, and regardless of organization, will seek an amalgamation of all disabled men. It is planned to go right to work on the consolidation plan.

Think Nabbed Trio Are River Marauders

Youths Captured in Stolen Canoe Had Other Stolen Property

BOAT WAS DISGUISED

The police believe that in a trio of local Italian youths who have been held under bail they have the ones who have been preying upon local canoeists, pleasure boat owners and campers hereabouts this summer. There have been quite a few thefts reported by Bristolians who frequent the river and its environs.

The trio were captured through the watch set by one of the sufferers from these depredations.

About a week ago Fred Kring, of Cedar street, missed his canoe from the rack where he keeps it, at the foot of Lafayette street. He told his friends that his canoe was gone and requested them to keep a watch for it on the river.

The look-out thus established was successful yesterday, for Richard Winslow of Cedar street recognized the canoe as it passed him on the river. Three young men were in it. Winslow knew it to be Kring's despite the fact that it had been repainted inside, to disguise it.

Winslow watched where the canoe went, followed it and called the police, who arrested the trio. They proved to be Ernest Mart, 1618 Trenton avenue, John Whyano, 605 Cedar street and Tony Picararo, 614 Wood street.

A pair of paddles said to belong to William Priestley and a tent owned by Ralph Walker were also found in the possession of the youths.

They were last night arraigned before Justice Kraft and each held in $300 bail for court charged with larceny.

Decrease In Farming Not In This Section of Bucks Co.

There are one hundred vacant farms in Bucks County, according to statistics just made public by the State Department of Agriculture. This would indicate that farming as a vocation was on the decrease in this section.

The figures of the state statisticians do not coincide, however, with the opinions of agents in this section who deal in farm lands. They claim that there are very few vacant farms in lower Bucks County, and that those which are unoccupied are undesirable.

Last year, when the boom period in farm land was on, there were only thirty-eight vacant farms in the county. This shows that sixty-two farms have been abandoned during the past twelve months.

It is the consensus of opinion among real estate men, however, that most of the farms in Lower Bucks County are occupied at the present time.

"I do not know of a vacant farm within a radius of six miles of Bristol," said J. Edward Lovett, a Bristol real estate dealer. "There is the usual demand for farm lands, and I have sold four since April 1st. The prices are holding up fairly well. Small farms, averaging from twenty to ninety acres, are in demand and bring a higher price than the larger ones."

Mr. Lovett says, "According to size, price and location they average from $200 to $400 per acre. Farms having from forty to ninety acres bring from $140 to $165 per acre.

"Most of the vacant farms in Bucks County, especially in lower Bucks, are those which are being cut up into building lots, or else are along railroad property and are undesirable."

A Brook Shoemaker, said today. Mr. Shoemaker also said that he did not know of any vacant farms in lower Bucks County. The prices are decreasing somewhat, but very few have been sold recently.

The fact that the sixty-two farmers

Local Fishermen Get Early Start As Season Opens

Report Pike Biting Good, But Bass Not Very Active

WATER RATHER MUDDY

Anglers Dot Streams, Though Philadelphia Contingent Is Absent

Local streams are dotted today with fishermen who are out angling for bass and pike. The weather is considered favorable, with the exception that the water is somewhat muddy due to the heavy rains of the last two days. Fishermen report that pike are biting good, but that bass are not active. This is attributed by some to the condition of the water.

This morning there were four boats on the Mill Pond and some half dozen other anglers fished from the banks. All reported that the pike were biting fine. Phillip Murphy up until noon claimed the record. Murphy said that he had caught seven fine pike in about twenty minutes. One of the catch measured over 18 inches and the others were fine ones too.

Today marked the opening of the bass and pike season, and no better bass and pike fishing is to be found in Pennsylvania than right here in this section. The Mill Pond is full of both varieties, the streams at Maple Beach are well stocked as is also Scott's creek at Tullytown.

Usually, on the first day of the season, a group of Philadelphia fishermen comes to Bristol on the owl train, reaching here about 1.30 in the morning. They then engage in night fishing and as a rule get the lead on the local boys. Last night's rainstorm prevented this and none of the outsiders put in an appearance.

The local fishermen are awaiting with eagerness time to get their rods and line and get busy on the streams near here. Horace N. Davis, of Gilkison & James, expects to beat the streams shortly. John Hardy is another enthusiast and James Daniels, Jim O'Donnell, Charles Oliver and M. D. Harrison are anticipating a day or so at the sport in the near future.

The well stocked conditions of the waters with fish is directly due to the aggressiveness and foresight of the fish committee of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, who this year have been zealous in their efforts to plant fish in every stream nearby.

The local association this year have put out thousands of fish. They have planted them in every stream nearby, and the varieties include pike, bass, pike-bass, sun-fish and others.

have quit tillage of the soil is indicative that the "back to the land" agitation which has been carried on for some years past has not taken much root and that the farmer's life still continues to hold little attraction for the average individual, especially the farmer's son.

It is now no longer the desire of people to live on a farm, work eighteen hours a day and take the chance of having either good or poor crops at the end of the season, with also the possibility that perhaps prices will be too high or too low.

A theory advanced is that many who, under the stress of raising sufficient food for the Allies, were encouraged to go back to the farm and in this way supply the Allies with food and thus enable the Allies to whip the Hun, have quit agriculture, satisfied that their task is complete, and was only temporary.

The Department of Agriculture, however, attributes the decrease to the industrial conditions in the counties where the farming decrease is prevalent.

The conditions existing in Bucks County are, nevertheless, not the same as those which exist throughout the State. Secretary of Agriculture, Fred Rasmussen says that the number of vacant farms in the State has decreased more than one-third during the past year.

It is now easier for the farmers to get labor than it was a year ago and one of his main troubles has thus been eliminated. This, however, apparently has not encouraged any to take up farming in this county.

Just a year ago, Secretary Rasmussen called attention to the abandoned farms.

THE MOVIE CONTROVERSY

The controversy centering around the State Moving Picture Censors may subside, now that Dr. Oberholtzer, former member of the Board, has explained why he was fired. The censors will now probably be able to continue the work the State is paying them for, without having to reply to the ministerial and other cohorts which took up the cudgels for Dr. Oberholtzer when he was first relieved from voting power on the Board.

The Board may not get as much publicity as it did during the time Dr. Oberholtzer was writing profusely for the magazines and while he and his sympathizers have been making so much to-do over his shelving. The Board will be well able to get along without this publicity, which did it no good and no doubt distracted the minds of the members from their work of censoring the films.

There is hardly any doubt but that the film output of the multitude of producers nowadays engaged in making film plays is so large that the censors, if they pay strict attention to their task, will have little time to go about the country making addresses to clubs, societies, ministerial associations, or writing for the monthly reviews, the social uplift press and the moving picture journals.

Dr. Oberholtzer seemed to be very prone to write and talk of his work before such audiences, and seemingly enjoyed the laudations it got him. In fact, it would appear as if being bereft of the dignified title of State Moving Picture Censor, to sign to his magazine articles, was the ranking cause of his dissatisfaction. He could not have been dissatisfied with the change from a remunerative standpoint, for it was a promotion in salary.

The fact was, that by the change, he became a much lesser man in dignity and lost the prestige he had formerly been able to command from magazine readers, social uplifters, ministers and others, from whom he seemed particularly to curry favor.

THE ZONING SYSTEM

One of the progressive ideas of which should be thoughtfully considered in Bristol is that of "zoning."

Under the "zone system" as usually carried out, a city or town decides what portion of its territory shall be reserved for homes, what portion shall be open for factory buildings and what portion shall be for stores.

This system has been adopted in many towns, because, so frequently, some one would put up unattractive little stores or shops or garages, closely adjacent to handsome dwellings. These additions would spoil a pleasant neighborhood, discourage building in that locality and thus injure the whole town.

Bristol shows the need of such restrictions as would be imposed by a zoning system, especially in its residence portion. Buildings are erected haphazardly and without regard to the effect they may have on the neighboring buildings or their fitness for their surroundings.

BETTER TIMES AHEAD

The present state of affairs in this country had its inception in the early days of the Wilson administration.

One of the first acts of the Democratic regime was the enactment of the Underwood Free-Trade Tariff Law, the direct result of which was to lower the morale of labor in this country and to deprive domestic industry of the fostering care of the government under which it exists. With the lowering of the Tariff bars, there came a flood of cheap importations, and the United States was made the dumping ground for the output of the underpaid and underfed labor of foreign countries, with the result that domestic labor was thrown out of employment.

It is now a matter of history, that during that part of the Wilson administration extending from the enactment of the Underwood Law, to the outbreak of the war in Europe, our country faced a serious problem in its large army of unemployed, and matters were growing more serious as foreign countries continued to flood our markets with their cheap products. The war, however, suspended this condition, and when America was forced into the struggle, that labor, which prior to the war was denied the constitutional right of a livelihood in its own country by the Underwood Free-Trade Act, was not found lacking when war-time emergencies required their services in trench, field and factory.

The war is over. The glory of that victory is now only a memory. The soldiers who fought, and the laborers who toiled, in order that success might crown our efforts in war, again find themselves confronted with their deadly pre-war enemy, the Free-Trade Law and its inevitable result—compulsory enlistment in the army of the unemployed. In this trying position, they have been showered with golden promises from Washington, that this condition is only the result of the after-effects of war, and that as soon as the country returns to normal, all will be well again. But, what do these Free-Traders in Washington mean by normal? Is it the condition which existed during the period just preceding the outbreak of the war, when the Free-Trade Act brought hardship and destruction to American labor and industry, and presented to our country an army of unemployed larger than ever known in its history, and brought back to us the dreaded bread-line and one cent coffee houses? If so, then God forbid that we should even return to normal. American labor and industry demand, and are entitled to, a higher level of normality than that presented to us at any time during the Wilson administration.

UNHAPPY MARRIAGES

Wonder how all these June brides and bridegrooms are getting along? Have their honeymoons been all that was expected? Or are some of 'em already getting a little frayed around the edges suggesting that the wedding garment was not made a very enduring material?

Philosophers and educators are deploring the great number of divorces and they feel they are a sinister fact in modern life. Can anything be done to remove the causes of these tragedies?

Commonly, such matrimonial wrecks are attributed to lack of congeniality between the two parties; also to the fact that many people are wedded after very short acquaintance, when they know little about each other. But perhaps the biggest cause of all is that so many married couples set up their housekeeping without those two bears lacking which no home is a success. These two bears are "Bear and forebear."

Two people may be interested in precisely the same things, but if they are selfish and inconsiderate, they are jarring on each other every minute, each feeling that the other is not taking the fair share of the combined load.

Soon they are taken by some new face or fancy and want to shift partners. People who are passing through their first matrimonial jars should reflect on what a miserable tragedy separations usually are, and ask themselves if they purpose to do everything possible in the way of sacrifice and service.

A MAN FOR THE AGES

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

By IRVING BACHELLER

In a few minutes Bim came from the top of the ladder to Ann. The latter went and looked up at her. Both girls burst into peals of merry laughter. Bim had put on a suit of her father's old clothes and her buffalo skin whiskers and was a wild sight.

"Don't you come down looking like that," said Ann. "I'll go up there and tend to you."

Ann climbed the ladder and for a time there was much laughing and chattering in the little loft. By and by Ann came down. Bim hesitated, laughing, above the ladder for a moment, and presently followed in her best blue dress, against which the golden curls of her hair fell gracefully. With red cheeks and bright eyes, she was a glowing picture. Very faintly she gave her hand to Mr. Biggs.

"It's just the right dress," he said. "It goes so well with your hair. I'm glad to see you. I have never seen a girl like you in my life. I'm going to come and see you often, if your mother will let me."

A blush spread over the girl's cheeks to the pretty dimple at the point of her chin.

"You'll see her scampering up the ladder like a squirrel," said Mrs. Kelso. "She isn't real tame yet."

"Perhaps we could hide the ladder," he suggested, with a smile.

"Do you play on the flute?" Bim asked.

"No," said Mr. Biggs.

"I was afraid," Bim exclaimed. "My Uncle Henry does." She looked into Mr. Biggs' eyes.

Mr. Biggs laughed. "That smile of yours is very becoming," he said.

At this point Mr. Kelso returned with his gun on his shoulder and was introduced to Mr. Biggs.

"I welcome you to the hazards of my fireside," said Kelso. "So you're from St. Louis and stopped for repairs in this land of the ladder climbers. Sit down and I'll put a log on the fire."

"Thank you, I must go," said Biggs. "Can I not stay with flagons?" Kelso asked.

"The doctor has forbidden me all drink but milk and water."

"A wise man is Doctor Allen!" Kelso exclaimed. "Cervantes was right in saying that too much wine will neither keep a secret nor fulfill a promise."

"Will you make me a promise?" Bim asked of Mr. Biggs, as he was leaving the door with Ann.

"Anything you will ask," he answered.

"Please don't ever look at the new moon through a knot hole," she said in a half whisper.

The young man laughed. "Why not?"

"If you do, you'll never get married."

"Don't be alarmed by my daughter's fancies," Kelso advised. "They are often rather astonishing."

So Mr. Elphalett Biggs met the pretty daughter of Jack Kelso. On his way back to the tavern he told Ann that he had fallen in love with the sweetest and prettiest girl in all the world—Bim Kelso. That very evening Ann went over to Kelso's cabin to take the news to Bim and her mother and to tell them that her father reckoned he belonged to a very rich and a very grand family. Mr. Kelso had gone to Offutt's store and the three had the cabin to themselves.

"I think he's just a wonderful man," Bim exclaimed. "But I'm sorry his name is so much like figs and pigs. I'm plum sure I'm going to love him."

"I thought you were in love with Harry Needles," Bim's mother said to her.

"I am. But he keeps me so busy. I have to dress him up every day and put a mustache on him and think up ever so many nice things for him to say, and when he comes he doesn't say them. He's terribly young."

"You told me that he said once you were beautiful."

"But he has never said it twice, and when he did say it, I didn't believe my ears, he spoke so low. Acted kind o' like he was scared of it. I don't want to wait forever to be really and truly loved, do I?"

New Colonial Theatre

Things begin to happen in the very first scene of "Black Sheep," which will be shown at the New Colonial Theatre tonight.

Even before you are comfortably seated you will find yourself neck-deep in interest in this dynamic drama of one of the most unusual wars ever staged in this or any other country. It is a picture based upon the war between the cattlemen and the sheepherders and it was no gentlemen's war, either.

The hotbed of these hostilities was in Wyoming, the locale of this picture, and before it ended many lives were lost and thousands of dollars worth of sheep and cattle were destroyed.

Neal Hart is the star of this production, which excels any of his previous efforts both in historic and artistic effects. He is supported by an exceptionally clever cast, which makes this one of the best western productions ever shown at the New Colonial Theatre.

The lover of out-of-door drama, which was portrayed with so telling an effect in Neal Hart's other productions—"Hell's Oasis," "Danger Valley" and "Skyfire"—will find in "Black Sheep" the same sort of cleverness that is earning for that star the title of America's premier actor of western roles.

Forrest Theatre

Conway Tearle will be seen tonight at the Forrest Theatre in "Bucking the Tiger". The eminent screen star will be seen in a lavishly staged, apply portrayed story that is replete with brilliant themes and excellent settings. It is a play for both young and old.

mediately start functioning as the directing head of the American war-time armies. There would, of course, need to be many additions of personnel to put the organization on a war footing, but under General Pershing's plan there would be a trained man for every really vital post who would not only know how to run his job but would also be ready to break in others as his assistants when the proper time came.

The present General Staff will have charge of all routine matters of administration in the War Department during peace time. That organization would not be interfered with by the war-time machine, but in time of war would function as the Service of Supply for the Armies in the Field.

General Pershing also has positive notions as to the part the civilian soldier should play in our scheme of national defense. As a West Point graduate and "regular army man," the General appreciates the value of the professional soldier as a nucleus upon which to build an army. He labors under no illusions, however, as to the comparative importance of the roles played by professional soldiers and civilian soldiers during the World War. He believes the United States has in her youthful male population the greatest military material in the world, and he saw much of it prove its worth on the battlefields of France.

The great task, the General believes, is to keep these young veterans interested in the army. He wants the national Guard recruited to a strength of 500,000 or more, and he wants to see the Officers' Reserve Corps continued with its war-time spirit and morale.

The General believes the present system of training National Guard units is all wrong. Under the present scheme Regular Army officers who do not "fit" in other jobs are sent out as instructors to National Guard organizations. They are given no particular instructions as to how their work shall be carried on, and each man is free to do about as he pleases.

General Pershing is convinced that instructors should be picked men, chosen because they show particular aptitude for the job they are to undertake. He believes the officers so chosen should then be sent to a school for six or eight months and given a uniform course in military pedagogy in order that there may be uniformity in the instruction they are to impart to embryo soldiers to whom they may later be assigned.

Incidentally, General Pershing is expected to make a few changes in the General Staff. While the nature of these changes has not been divulged officially as yet, it is understood that they will be in the direction of decentralization. The General intends that there shall be no ground in the future for the criticism that the General Staff is usurping the functions of War Department bureaus.

But the Pershing innovation, which is awaited with greatest expectancy, especially by officers who served overseas, is the suggested modification of the uniform regulations to include the Sam Brown belt. The question of the Sam Brown belt first came up when the American forces went overseas and the "harness" was authorized for use in the A. E. F. At that time it was recommended by a board of general officers for use in the United States, but the proposal was defeated by the opposition, it is said, of General March.

Being a full general, General Pershing has the right to prescribe his own uniform, and it is a notable fact that since his return to America he has always worn the Sam Brown belt.

plans to spend tonight at the home of a friend in Jersey City. He will receive no visitors, even newspapermen being barred. He will do light setting up exercises tomorrow morning and then probably take a nap while waiting for the hour to go to the arena.

Carpentier, at Manhasset, was even in more seclusion than Dempsey. All shades were drawn at his cottage last night and no one was permitted even to make any inquiries regarding his condition. It is not known definitely when he will go to Jersey City. One report had it that he will make the trip tomorrow on the private yacht of one of his admirers. This could not be confirmed.

Betting continued light. The odds range from 2 to 1 to 3 to 1. One Wall street house announced that it had $1,000 to bet against $8,000 that Dempsey will win by a knock out in the first round; $1,000 against $4,000 that he will win by a knock out in the second round; $1,000 against $4,000 that he will win by a knockout in the second round; 1,000 against $3,000 that he will win in the third by a knockout; $1,000 against $2,000 that he will win in fourth by knockout and $5,000 even that Dempsey wins in the fifth by knockout.

Your Silent Partner

When you work without saving you work alone. Your income is derived solely from the sheer weight of your own strength and ability, and is subject to the usual risks of health and business uncertainties.

When you save you have working with and for you a silent partner who some day may earn as much or more for you than you are able to make by your own efforts.

Your savings can now be made to work most profitably for you because of the unusually high rates of interest now obtainable.

Several houses reported having Carpentier money, odds of 1 to 3 being demanded. It was said that Dempsey backers were holding out for 2 to 1.

The last move of the Reform League to stop the fight will come today when its complaint will be presented to the Hudson County grand jury. Rickard was not worrying this morning and indicated it as his belief that the grand jury will not take any action. The Hudson county prosecutor has stated that he will not take any action. The Hudson county prosecutor has stated that he will not make any recommendation in the matter but will simply file the complaint with the grand jury.

Decrease In Farming Not In This Section of Bucks

oned farm situation in this State, and which at that time was regarded as serious. A year ago there were approximately 6469 untenanted farms in this State, while more than eighty thousand farms were unable to secure adequate help.

The business depression which developed late last fall, has changed the entire situation. Reports from all sections of the State indicate that farmers are now able to get sufficient help, although the quality is not particularly high.

The "back to the farm" trend, however, is clearly indicated by the fact that during the year 2359 vacant farms have been tenanted, and are now being tilled.

A year ago there were 6469 vacant farms, while on June 1, 1921, the number was reduced to 4090. Secretary Rasmussen, in discussing the report, declared that in all probability the 4090 farms that are now untenanted, are largely farms of a very poor quality, and many of which have been unoccupied for years.

remain in Washington to push charges against the federal vocational board, which have been brought to the attention of the Walsh Senate Investigating Committee and also to take charge of the claims of some members who claim to have been given unfair treatment.

The program outlined at the convention embraces the following:

The placing of ex-service men in jobs caring for the disabled, giving preference to the disabled men themselves.

A sweeping house cleaning in the federal vocational training board, including the war risk insurance bureau and public health service hospitals.

Free war risk policies to the amount carried by the individual soldier during his service, for all disabled veterans.

Adjustment of the government's methods of handling funds.

Nine nurses were graduated from the Lock Haven Hospital training school.
